Holiday Safety Reminders

Everyone is looking for extra money or gifts during the holiday season, from mid-November through early January, and that includes criminals. They are out in force trying to separate you from your money and property. Be extra vigilant during the holiday season and keep the following tips in mind.

PERSONAL SAFETY WHEN SHOPPING

- Shop during daylight hours whenever possible.
- Know exactly where you park your car.
- If shopping at night, park in well-lit areas.
- Avoid shopping alone.
- Carry keys, cash, and credit cards separate from each other, and constantly pay attention to your surroundings.
- Avoid carrying large amounts of cash. If possible, avoid carrying a purse. Use a fanny pack or deep pockets in clothing to carry what you need. Limit the number of credit cards that you carry.
- If you have to carry a purse, carry it close to your body and always keep it zipped or snapped.
- Be aware of strangers "accidentally" bumping into you. Pick-pockets use this as a diversion.
- Avoid carrying large packages that block your vision and make you a target for thieves.
- Avoid shopping until you are exhausted. You are more alert when you are less tired.
- When hurried or in a crowded shop, make sure you get all forms of identification and credit cards returned to you before you leave.
- Leave the mall/store well before closing time. This way, there is a greater assurance you will walk out with other people. There is safety in numbers.
- Use an escort or mall security if you have too many packages, or if you are leaving the store after closing.

- Be alert while walking to your car. Check under and around your car as you approach it. After checking your car, lock it immediately upon entering it.
- If you see a van parked next to your car, you can choose to enter your car through the passenger side.
- Avoid using automatic teller machines at night, and remember to keep others from seeing when you type in your PIN.

HOME SAFETY

- Do not leave the boxes of your Christmas gifts (such as computers, televisions, etc.) at the curb, as this advertises the contents of your home to potential thieves.
- Ensure doors and windows are locked at all times, even when you are home.
- Use timers on lights to give the appearance you are home when you are not.
- If you order gifts to be delivered to your home, ensure someone is there to accept the package. Have a trusted neighbor keep a lookout for the packages.
- If you go out of town for the holidays, make sure you ask a trusted neighbor, friend, or family member to check the house at least once a day and pick up mail and newspapers. Provide your contact number in case of emergency.
- Keep garage doors closed and be sure the door from the garage into the home is secured.
- Make sure your home address is not showing on your luggage.

Help To Serve and Protect Fairfax County

As the Fairfax County Police Department Auxiliary Police Officer Program (APO) celebrates 25 years of service, police encourage residents to consider joining this dynamic team of devoted volunteers.

Volunteers bring a wide variety of life experiences to the APO program, such as; law, military, public relations, clergy members, home-makers, teachers and students. These diverse skills and talents are tailored to police department duties and needs, as well as to the interest of the volunteers.

The roles and responsibilities of APOs are significant: they serve programs and events that are critical to protecting and fostering public safety in Fairfax County. Assisting officers at weekly sobriety checkpoints, supporting community training programs such as Sexual Assault Free and Empowered (SAFE), role-playing at the Fairfax Criminal Justice Academy, conducting home security surveys and taking fingerprints at community events are just a few examples of volunteers serving throughout the police department.

Auxiliary officers are provided training, uniforms, and all necessary equipment. Officers will be expected to perform an average of 24 hours of volunteer service each month. Applicants must be in good health, without a criminal record or history of drug use and not be an applicant for police officer in any jurisdiction.

Help make your community a safer place to work and live. Make your spare time matter. Consider becoming an APO today.

To learn more about the APO program or to sign up to begin the application process, call 703-280-0701 or check out auxiliarypolice@fairfaxcounty.gov.

Police Encourage All to Enjoy a SAFE December

The Fairfax County Police Department is beginning its annual SAFE December public safety campaign, aimed at educating the public about the dangers of irresponsible and underage alcohol use, removing drunk drivers from county roadways and keeping people who live and visit Fairfax County safe.

Through Sunday, January 4, officers from all eight district stations across the county will conduct additional DWI patrols. Officers will saturate county roadways and will hold extra sobriety checkpoints, in addition to those that already take place each week. Police cadets in plain clothing will attempt to purchase alcohol from retail and restaurant establishments across the county to thwart sales to underage drinkers.

Captain Susan Culin, Commander of the Traffic Division, noted that while overall alcohol-related crashes declined in 2007 from 922 down to 855, "We must remain vigilant in the fight against drunk and impaired driving. If you plan to drink during the holidays, we urge you to designate a sober driver every time you get into your vehicle."

Some of the SAFE December highlights include:

- "Drive Hammered-Get Nailed" enhanced DWI enforcement campaign in the Reston Police District
- Education efforts targeting juvenile drivers with too many occupants in their vehicles in the West Springfield Police District
- A coordinated sobriety checkpoint with the Loudoun County Sheriff's Office and the Virginia State Police Friday, December 19
- Hosting a Checkpoint Strikeforce DWI simulation media opportunity at the Emergency Vehicle Operations Center (EVOC) 3725 Stonecroft Blvd., Chantilly on Friday, December 5 at 11 a.m.
- Joint presentation with the Washington Regional Alcohol Program (WRAP), in both English and Spanish, to the community at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in the Mason Police District on Sunday, December 21 (media welcome)
- Offering classroom instruction and education on child safety seats to Fairfax families in a community partnership with Nurturing Families and INOVA Safe Kids Coalition, Wednesday, December 3 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

For more information on any of these upcoming events or initiatives, check <http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/police/news-releases/2008/holidays.htm> where weekly updates on SAFE December efforts will be posted throughout the month.

Reston Business Crime Watch

Is Your Workspace Safe?

Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design for Your Workspace

By PFC Katy Fernbacher, Reston Crime Prevention Office

For businesses, especially retail, the busy holiday season is quickly approaching. With this come lines, customers who camp out for special sales, and the seemingly unending days of work. This holiday season make your workspace a safer environment for yourself and employees with Crime Prevention through Environmental Design (CPTED). CPTED uses four principle characteristics to define a space, whether it is an office full of cubicles or a row of cash registers in a retail store.

Here are the four principles and how they can be used for any business:

Territorial Reinforcement:

Clearly marked signage that defines public from private space. The best way to enforce this principle is by keeping doors closed that do not have public access, especially in areas that have public restrooms. Do not invite the public into your private space. Encourage employees to challenge anyone who looks like they don't belong in the private space. If name badges or uniforms are worn by employees, let that be a determining factor as to who belongs in a certain space. Having clearly marked signage directing the public where to go will keep some people from wandering into private spaces. Also, having employees direct customers into lines will aid in keeping private spaces private.

Access Control: Limit access into the building or site through one entrance. Multiple points of entry can cause confusion and heighten the probability of private spaces being breached. If a door can be locked to limit access, lock it. Limit the number of keys given to employees to ensure doors are locked. The more keys that are given out, the higher the chance a key could get lost. You can also limit the accessibility of employees. If intercoms or telephones are installed within your building, use them to screen who enters the building.

Surveillance: Be aware of your surroundings. Pay attention to anything that you might see or hear that is out of the ordinary, and pass that information on to a supervisor or security.

Maintenance: Keep your area clean and free of debris. A clean and tidy workspace can mean that the area is monitored and gives the impression that someone is watching the space on a regular basis.

This can transfer into your workspace in many ways. The simple act of keeping doors closed keeps people from entering spaces that are not for them to enter. By keeping cash register areas free of debris, you increase the visibility around the cash register and may give a cashier a better view of what is around them. If cashiers have better visibility, they might be able to detect someone attempting to steal something within the store and alert a supervisor or security.

Please remember that the safety of your business and your employees is very important. When getting ready for the holiday season take a few moments with your employees to review any safety and security policies or procedures that you might have in place. Ask your employees if they have safety or security issues with any areas of their jobs. If safety and security policies or procedures do not exist, consider making some and encourage your employees to assist in the writing and implementing them.

The Reston Crime Prevention Office would be glad to answer any questions you might have about implementing safety and security procedures in your business. Contact PFC Katy Fernbacher at 703-478-0799 or by e-mail katy.fernbacher@fairfaxcounty.gov.

When getting ready for the holiday season, take a few moments with your employees to review any safety and security policies or procedures that you might have in place.
